FOXBOROUGH, Mass. – Over the next week, the New England Revolution and its players are joining forces with the Animal Rescue League of Boston (ARL) to support their pet adoption efforts and collect much-needed food supplies for the organization's Keep Pets S.A.F.E. community program.

On Tuesday, May 2 at 2:30 p.m. ET, Revolution players including forward Jozy Altidore and defender Andrew Farrell, will visit the Animal Rescue League's Dedham branch. The professional soccer players will deliver the food collected on Saturday, tour the facility with ARL staff, meet the animals up for adoption, and help out with tasks around the facility. Farrell also participated in the ARL's "Too Hot for Spot" campaign last year, promoting summer pet safety.

On Saturday, April 29 before the Revolution's 7:30 p.m. ET Major League Soccer home match against FC Cincinnati, Revolution players arrived to Gillette Stadium wearing shirts with photos of dogs and cats currently available for adoption with the Animal Rescue League. Those shirts will be signed and donated to ARL for auction. Also on Saturday, the Revolution invited fans to donate unopened dog and cat food for ARL Boston's Keep Pets S.A.F.E. program, which provides pet food and supplies to pet owners in need throughout Greater Boston, as part of the Drive Series Presented by Dan O'Brien Automotive Group. The New England Revolution Foundation had red collection bins at all Gillette Stadium entry gates. Fans could also scan QR codes located on the concourse to support ARL with monetary donations.
